Camp Pendleton Furnishes Combat-Ready Marines

By MAJ. GEN. JOHN T. SELDEN, USMC
Commanding General

WHILE the twelve-year history of Camp Pendleton, Calif. has been a varied one, its primary mission has remained unchanged since its establishment on March 27, 1942.

The Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, has the mission of training combat-ready troops for immediate utilization wherever the need may arise.

Transformed by the Second War Powers Act in 1942 from the Rancho Santa Margarita y las Flores into the world's largest Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton covers an area of 126,435 acres. The Camp extends inland for ten miles and stretches twenty miles northward along the Pacific Coast from Oceanside to the outskirts of San Clemente. Within its broad expanse are three mountain ranges, five lakes and 250 miles of road.

This vast area of hills and valleys, plains and marshes, rivers and sea coast provides every conceivable type of terrain needed for the individual combat training of troops and for the testing of new tactics and equipment.

During World War II, over 200,000 Marines trained at Camp Pendleton for their amphibious campaigns in the Pacific. The Base trained units of the 3d and

Pay Hike In News On Hill-Pentagon

Military pay scales commanded new attention this week as: 1) legislation was introduced in the Senate and House to boost pay and allowances by 10 per cent, and, 2) the substance of a "confidential study" submitted to Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson was made known. (Details on the Pay Front are published on the back page.)

SecDef Wilson Orders Officer Assignment Inquiry Throughout the Armed Forces

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson has ordered an across-the-board inquiry into current assignment patterns for all officers in the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps. He contends that officers are being moved too frequently and that this detracts from combat readiness, wastes money and damages morale.

Consequently, Mr. Wilson has directed the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force and the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and Personnel to investigate career management and career planning policies.

Basic objectives of the high-level study: Increased Stabilization.

Mr. Wilson has stipulated that the education, training and rotation of officers from one assignment to another be surveyed. He added in a communication to the Service Secretaries that data be gathered concerning the impact of quotas at joint schools and requirements for joint staffs and international staffs.

The Defense Secretary asserted career management officer shifts may be detracting, rather than adding, to the operational readiness of combat forces.

NSC FACES $750,000,000 RESERVE DECISION

The National Security Council is expected to vote approval at a 22 July meeting of a Reserve Forces "New Look," which will add $750,000,000 to the defense budget in the next fiscal year.

Present costs for the Reserve Forces are placed at three-quarters of a billion dollars per year; the new plan would double that figure.

In addition to the extra money, the new Reserve Plan will require drafting of men to meet manpower requirements in National Guard and Reserve units and legislative enforcement for active participation in Reserve units by men who have served on active duty.

Top Defense officials maintain that the failure thus far to strengthen the Reserve Forces is the single major defect in the "New Look" defense plan.

Senate Group Cuts Army "Better Quarters" Program In Half; AF Also Loses, Navy Gains

A multi-million dollar Army plan to build better quarters for enlisted personnel and bachelor officers has been whacked almost in half by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The action was taken by the Committee as it approved a considerably smaller military construction program for fiscal '55 than previously had been passed by the House.

The group wiped out a $13 million increase in Army construction funds voted by the House and dropped an additional $28 million from the Army program. Air Force funds also were cut approximately $4.5 million.

Nearly $6 million of the funds thus eliminated were turned over to the Navy and Marine Corps.

In reducing the Army's troop housing and BOQ construction program, the Committee said its action "does not represent an indifference to the desirability of replacing temporary buildings with more adequate facilities, but at a time when (Please turn to Page 1369)

Congress Rushes Military Bills—Save One

The 83d Congress, rushing towards an end-of-July adjournment, this week stepped up action on military legislation, highlighted by Senate passage and House Armed Services Committee report of the reenlistment bonus bill (page 1392). Similar progress was scored for the Defense Department's Assistant Secretaries Bill (page 1366).

Here are other items on which legislative action proceeded this week:

SOLDIERS' DEPOSITS—Both Houses cleared for the White House a bill broadening rules for withdrawal of funds in emergencies.

HOUSING—Senate Armed Services Committee cut virtually in half Army funds for troop housing and BOQ facilities.

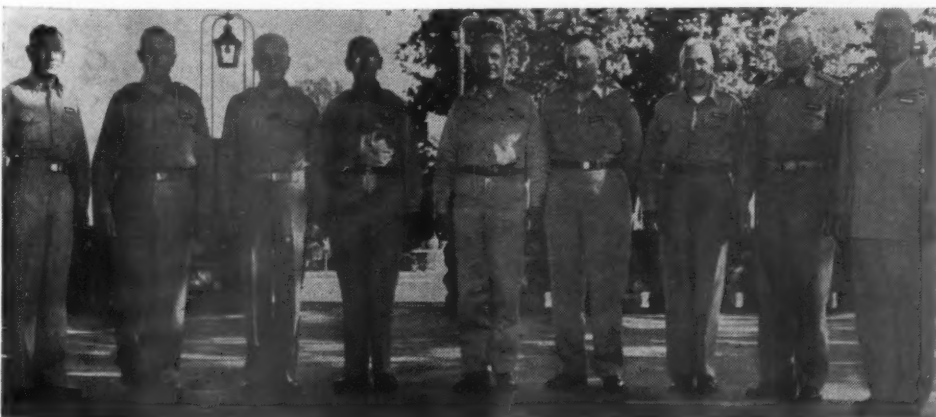

ARMY RETIRED GENERALS—House passed legislation boosting 11 retired Army lieutenant generals to general rank—two more than in the Senate version. Senate agreed and bill went to White House.

FAMILY MEDICAL CARE—There was no action on this high priority Pentagon career legislation. (Editorial, Page 1374.)

ROPA—Senate Armed Services Committee scheduled hearings for 20 July on the Reserve Officer Personnel Act.

SENATE APPROVES ASSISTANT SECRETARIES

Two additional assistant secretaries each for the Army, Navy and Air Force have been approved by the Senate, and the House is expected to vote on the proposal next week.

Senator Robert C. Hendrickson (R-N.J.), explained the bill in the Senate. He said, "The Army, Navy and Air Force are at least comparable in size and the complexity of their operations to the largest of the executive departments" and yet each has only two assistant secretaries "instead of the customary four."

"Under this method of staffing," he added, "the civilian heads are so heavily burdened with operating responsibilities that they cannot effectively perform their functions."

He noted that passage of the measure (S 3466) "will assure a more effective and clear-cut civilian control throughout our military establishment."

The bill, as previously reported in THE JOURNAL, will give the Defense Department a grand total of 29 Secretaries, Deputy, Under and Assistant Secretaries.

In each of the three military departments, one of the new Assistant Secretaries will be designated to handle the department's finances. This official in the Navy also will be designated as Comptroller.

They completed their internships in seven selected Army hospitals on 1 July, and will serve for a year as compensatory duty for the rotating program of instruction they received during the past 12 months. The dental interns were commissioned as first lieutenants in the Army Dental Corps when they entered their internships and still serve in that rank.

The assignments follow:

Col. Williams Commission Sec

Col. Ernest F. Williams, USAF, has been designated Secretary General of the U. S. Delegation of the Joint Brazil-United States Defense Commission in the Pentagon. He will also serve as the Secretary General of the U. S. Section of the Joint Mexican-United States Defense Commission.

Colonel Williams goes to his new duty from a two year tour with the Joint Staff, JCS, which assignment followed his graduation from the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in 1952. He has had previous Latin American experience, having served from 1946 to 1949 with the Joint Brazil-United States Military Commission in Rio de Janeiro.

House Action Erases Limitation On Personal Property Losses; Plan Would Be Retroactive

Military personnel who lose personal property valued at more than $2500 will be able to recover the entire amount under the terms of a proposed amendment to the Military Personnel Claims Act of 1945.

The amendment, which has been approved by the House, knocks out the present $2500 limitation. It also permits recovery of the full amount of any claim in excess of $2500 in the case of an individual whose claim may have been settled between 3 July 1952 (the date the limitation was imposed) and the date the proposed amendment becomes effective.

The Defense Department said the present limitation "imposes the greatest hardship on those members of the military service who are least able to bear the burden. The usual claim averages about $250 or less, and involves damage or loss of household furnishings and personal property incident to transportation of shipment by Government carrier or by Government contract carrier.

"Events of catastrophic proportion such as fire, flood, and airplane crashes, account for the vast majority of claims in excess of $2500," the Department continued. "These major claims usually involve total losses of household furnishings and personal possessions of the unfortunate individuals concerned."

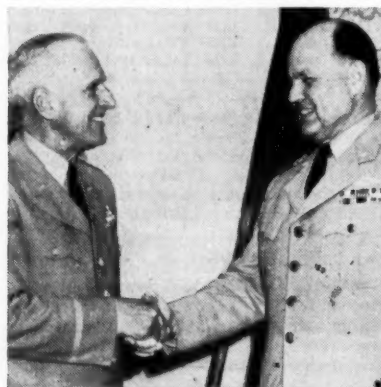

During fiscal '53, the three Services had 36 claims in which the amounts recovered by the individuals concerned were approximately $52,000 less than the actual losses involved. These underpayments were due to the present $2500 limitation.

The Defense Department said it "feels that especially in these cases of extreme hardship the full amount of the claim should be paid very promptly."

Col. Nelson AG At UNC

Col. Carlton W. Nelson, Adjutant General of IX U. S. Army Corps in Korea, has been named Adjutant General of the Far East and United Nations Command, Tokyo.

He replaces Col. Henry H. Wild, who has been assigned with the South Carolina Military District. Colonel Nelson served in Europe during WW II.

PX EXCHANGE—Maj. Gen. H. L. Peckham, USA, formerly in command of the Quartermaster Center at Ft. Lee, Va., left, has taken over the top job in the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, New York City, from Maj. Gen. Edward H. White, USAF.

Said General Peckham: "The Exchange Service is now beginning its 60th year of continuous service to servicemen. There has long been a tradition of constant improvement of service during those years and particularly in the last decade. I intend to continue that tradition."

Services Boost Percentage Of Top Graders; Time-In-Grade Requirements Not Uniform

Greater percentages of enlisted personnel will be assigned to the top three pay grades in the Army, Navy and Air Force during the next 12 months.

The Marine Corps, during the same period, will reduce its percentages of staff NCO's and set up longer service-in-grade requirements for promotion.

Statistics presented to Congress by the Defense Department's manpower chief, Assistant Secretary John A. Hannah, show these plans for fiscal '55:

The Army will boost its percentage of master sergeants from 3.77 to 4.50; sergeants, first class, from 6.44 to 7.71; and sergeants from 11.78 to 14.36.

The Navy will step up percentages of chief petty officers from 7.77 to 8.12; first class petty officers from 9.33 to 11.17, and second class petty officers from 12.29 to 13.14.

The Air Force will increase the percentage of its master sergeants from 5.96 to 6.25; technical sergeants from 7.18 to 7.50, and staff sergeants from 16.20 to 16.35.

The Marine Corps will reduce the percentage of Marines in the top pay grade from 4.07 to 3.92, and in the grade of staff sergeant from 7.03 to 6.93. The percentage of technical sergeants will be boosted slightly, from 4.66 to 4.69.

Figures released by Dr. Hannah also show that the Services have varying time-in-grade promotional requirements. The most liberal requirements are those established by the Army. The least liberal are new requirements imposed by the Marine Corps (see separate story on the Navy-Marine Corps page).

Each of the Services now promote enlisted personnel from pay grade E-1 to pay grade E-2 upon completion of their basic training.

For promotion to E-3, Army men must complete four months' service in the grade of E-2; Navy and Air Force personnel must complete six months in grade, and Marines must complete 12 months in grade.

For promotion to E-4, Army and Navy men must have at least six months' service in pay grade E-3; Airmen must have completed at least eight months in grade E-3; and Marines must have completed 12 months' service in the lower pay grade.

For promotion to E-5, Army corporals must have eight months' service in grade; Navy third class petty officers and Air Force sergeants must have 12 months in those grades and Marines must have 15 months' service as sergeants.

For promotion to E-6, Army sergeants must have 10 months' service in pay grade E-5; Navy second class petty officers must have 12 months' service in grade, a total of 36 months' active service and six months' sea duty in grades E-4 or E-5; Air Force staff sergeants must have 14 months' service in pay grade E-5; and Marines must have 20 months' service as staff sergeants.

For promotion to the top pay grade, E-7, Army sergeants, first class, must have 12 months' service in grade; Air Force technical sergeants must have 16 months' service in grade; Marine technical sergeants must have 24 months in grade; and Navy first class petty officers must have 36 months' service in grade, six months sea duty in grade E-6 and 12 months as acting E-7.

Dr. Hannah told a Senate Committee that the rate of both officer and enlisted promotion will be somewhat curtailed during the present fiscal year. He said, however, that the proportion of strength in the higher grades will increase.

RAdm. Espe Wears Two Hats

RAdm. Carl F. Espe, USN, Director of Naval Intelligence since 1 Dec. 1952, has been given the additional title of Assistant Chief of Naval Operations (Intelligence).

The added title is in line with the streamlining recommendations recently made by the Committee on Organization of the Navy.

Army Will Stress "CBR" Combat Training In 10 Major Maneuvers Set for FY '55

The Army will place unprecedented emphasis on training in chemical, bacteriological and radiological warfare in 10 major field exercises tentatively scheduled for fiscal '55.

The "CBR" combat training will be given during arctic, amphibious, mountain, jungle and diversified weapons operations.

Pentagon authorities say that the extent of the "CBR" training, which will involve an estimated 136,700 troops, has not been matched previously.

The forthcoming maneuvers will continue the emphasis on Atomic Age problems posed during the "Flash Burn" test in North Carolina.

Here is a summary of the 10 tests set for fiscal '55.

EXERCISE GREEN HILLS, to be conducted in the Camp Carson, Colorado, area, will take place during September-October, 1954. A mountain exercise involving the 31st Infantry Division, GREEN HILLS will provide training in organization of the battlefield in mountainous terrain under conditions in which both friendly and enemy forces have the capability of employing atomic weapons. Tactical air operations, night operations, animal and tramway supply and evacuation, electronic, chemical, bacteriological and radiological warfare will be included. GREEN HILLS will be conducted in four phases: two weeks of Battalion Combat Team exercises, one week of Regimental Combat Team training and one week of Division exercises.

HAIL STORM, an exercise in mountain and cold weather operations, will be conducted at Camp Carson and Camp Hale, Colorado, January-March, 1955. Approximately 10,000 troops of the 37th Infantry Division, in Regimental Combat Team increments, will participate. The purpose of HAIL STORM is to provide training in mountain operations under winter conditions. It is set up for evaluation of tactical doctrines applicable to the employment of and defense against atomic weapons. Set up in three phases, the nine-week exercise will, in addition to testing equipment, include training in electronic and chemical, bacteriological and radiological warfare, tactical air operations, and aerial supply and evacuation.

SNOW BIRD, an arctic exercise, will be conducted in Alaska January-February, 1955. Employing one Regimental Combat Team of the 11th Airborne Division, the exercise will provide joint training in the employment of Army and Air Force units under arctic conditions. Organization of forces and terrain and maneuverability required when enemy forces have an atomic capability will be stressed.

EXERCISE SURF BOARD during February-March, 1955, will be held on the West Coast. Army participation calls for an estimated 5,000 troops of the 44th Infantry Division. The exercise will include logistical support of amphibious operations, atomic operations, electronic and chemical, bacteriological and radiological warfare. SURF BOARD is intended to provide training for a Regimental Combat Team in planning for and conducting a ship-to-shore movement. Fire support coordination will include naval air, naval gunfire, and organic artillery.

EXERCISE FIREBALL in the Ft. Bragg-Camp Mackall, N. C., area will be conducted in April, 1955. Employing approximately 30,000 troops, FIREBALL is scheduled to develop procedures, tactics, techniques and organization of the battlefield under conditions imposed by friendly and enemy employment of atomic weapons. An airborne and special weapons exercise, FIREBALL will include play of three constructive divisions: Tactical Air Operations, Tactical Helicopter Operations, and Mobile Defense Operations. Night operations, electronic and CBR warfare will be included. Using troops of the XVIII Airborne Corps, 82d Airborne Division, 3d Armored Cavalry Regiment and 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team, methods of forcing the enemy into involuntary maneuvers and formations through employment of atomic weapons will be developed.

HIGH TIDE will be the second amphibious exercise of 1955, conducted at the Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Virginia, 2-28 May. Troops of the 47th Infantry Division will participate in the maneuver, which will provide training for a regimental combat team in planning for and conducting a ship-to-shore operation. Fire support coordination will include naval air, naval gunfire and organic artillery. The exercise will include logistical support of amphibious operations, atomic operations, electronic and chemical, bacteriological and radiological warfare.

BLUE BOLT I, at Ft. Hood, Texas, will be the site of two armored and special weapons exercises, conducted in March, 1955, will have troops of III Corps and the 1st Armored Division participating. BLUE BOLT II, to be held during the following May, will involve III Corps Headquarters and another armored division. Both exercises are set up to provide training in tactics, techniques and organization of the battlefield under conditions imposed by friendly and enemy employment of atomic weapons. Exploitation following friendly atomic attack and mobile defense against an enemy with atomic capability will be part of the exercises. Tactical Air Support, Tactical and Logistical Helicopter Operations, night operations, electronic and chemical, bacteriological and radiological warfare will be included in the training offered by both BLUE BOLT I and BLUE BOLT II.

APPLE JACK will test tactical air operations, aerial supply and evacuation, electronic and chemical, bacteriological and radiological warfare at Yakima Military Reservation, Washington, in May, 1955. Training in the organization of the battlefield in mountainous and desert terrain under conditions imposed by friendly and enemy atomic capabilities will be given the participating troops of the 44th Infantry Division.

JUNGLE JIM will involve approximately 1,200 troops of the 11th Airborne Division in Panama during May-June, 1955. JUNGLE JIM will offer training in jungle operations and provide an evaluation of the adequacy of current doctrines and tactics imposed by enemy employment of atomic weapons. Army procedures for planning and processing an overwater air movement will be tested. In addition to developing organizational and equipment requirements for jungle operations, electronic and CBR warfare will be utilized.

Tactical air operations in all the announced maneuvers will be furnished by the Tactical Air Command of the USAF.

Invite Service Groups

To See Chest Agencies

Service personnel in the Washington area, who contributed generously to the work of the Community Chest Federation, are being invited to visit agencies of the Federation so that they can see the activities carried on with their funds.

"Come and See" tours are now available to interested groups on a year-round basis. These are educational tours to show first-hand where Chest dollars go and to thank the visitors for their annual support. They are not for campaigning purposes.

Any group interested (groups of 20 or more are desired) may arrange the time and place they want to see by calling Mrs. Wilda Walker at DEcatur 2-7330. A bus will be contributed by the Silver Spring Transit Co. There are no charges for these tours.

John Hamlin Named To New Defense Post

John Hamlin, Special Assistant to the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Supply and Logistics), has been named as Small Business Advisor to the Assistant Secretary.

He will succeed Richard Lennihan who has resigned effective 2 July, to return to private business.

During WW II, Mr. Hamlin was a Naval Air Intelligence Officer. He served on the teaching staff at Quonset Point, R. I. Later, at Pearl Harbor he was attached to the Air Intelligence Office of ComAirPac where he prepared statistical operations analyses. He returned to inactive duty in 1945 with the rank of lieutenant commander, USNR.

In his new post, Mr. Hamlin will direct Defense Department policies in support of the small business program. He will also serve as liaison with the Congressional Small Business Committees and the agencies of Government concerned with the welfare of small business firms.

CAMPUS DOUBLE TIME

Lt. Col. William Luk, MPC, has been praised by the Dean of Michigan State College for completion of two years academic work in one year's study, during which he earned 110 credits, all but six of them with "A's" and "B's."

Said the Dean: "Considering the fact that he was carrying more than a double load, these grades are extremely remarkable."

Navy Awards First Active Duty Contracts

The first three active duty contracts have been awarded by the Navy.

The contract agreements, each for four years, were presented this week to Naval Reserve lieutenants by Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air James H. Smith, Jr., at a Pentagon ceremony.

Those awarded the contracts are part of a group of Reserve officers who will receive active duty agreements ranging from one to five years. The remainder of the contracts will be in the mail to individual officers by 1 August, the Navy said.

About 7,600 Reserve officers were screened by a board headed by RADM. Charles L. LaBarge, USNR, set up to make recommendations to the Secretary of the Navy.

Secretary Smith said that he believed the improvement in morale on the part of officers holding agreements would be reflected in increased efficiency and enthusiasm. "It is our hope," he said, that the implementation of the program, "will so encourage our Reservists that not only will those we now have on duty remain with us in the numbers that the Navy requires, but that others in the future will be encouraged to request such duty."

The three officers who were awarded contracts are: Lts. Warren M. Schofer, on duty in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations; John J. McGrath, on duty in the Bureau of Naval Personnel, and John W. Veazey, on duty in the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts.

Infantry School Shifts

Col. Thomas H. Beck has been appointed chief of the Combat Developments Office's Long Range Doctrine Section at the Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga., replacing Col. James Y. Adams, who will attend the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa.

Lt. Col. Harry W. Stephenson, Jr., replaces Lt. Col. Keith Schmedemann as management improvement officer in the Secretary's Office.

Colonel Schmedemann will attend the Command and General Staff College at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., in August.

Marine EM Face Longer Service-In-Grade; Need More Than Seven Years For M/Sgt.

Enlisted promotions in the Marine Corps will be slowed down during the next 12 months as the result of increased time-in-grade requirements imposed by Headquarters.

Figures released to Congress by Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah show that new promotional criteria will require Marines to serve more than seven years before they can aspire for promotion to master sergeant.

The new standards are the most rigid of all four military Services. Army personnel can now move up the promotional ladder to the top enlisted pay grade in a minimum of 44 months; Air Force personnel can make the promotional journey in a minimum of 60 months, and Navy personnel can achieve chief petty officer status in a minimum of 76 months.

Marine enlisted personnel, under the new time-in-grade requirements, must have at least 87 months' service before they can be considered for promotion to pay grade E-7.

Formerly, Marines could become eligible for promotion to the top pay grade after five years' and seven months' service.

Like the other Services, the Marine Corps now promotes and will continue to MAJ. WILLARD C. BLACKWELL (left) congratulates T/Sgt. Robert B. Kelly after presenting him with a citation for his work in developing a new AFSC (Air Force Specialty Code) within the Food Service Career Field. New Industry Post For Former Army Gen.

Brig. Gen. William E. Chickering, USA-Ret., has been appointed divisional vice president of the American Machine and Foundry Company's International Group.

General Chickering retired after 29 years of service with the Army in 1946. He was a member of the U. S. Military Mission in Cairo, Egypt, and on the staff of the Commanding General of the U. S. Army Forces in the Middle East in 1942-43.

He entered the Army in 1917 as a second lieutenant in the Infantry. His decorations include the Silver Star, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, and the Purple Heart.

Along with his new duties, he will continue as director of operations of the company's International Group, a post to which he was named on 1 Sept. 1952.

promote men to pay grade E-2 upon completion of their boot training. From that point on, however, service-in-grade requirements become increasingly stiffer.

Privates first class must spend at least 12 months in that grade before they will be considered for promotion to corporal, and another 12 months in grade as corporal before they can be considered for promotion to sergeant.

For promotion to the staff NCO ranks, service-in-grade requirements are further increased. Sergeants must complete at least 15 months' in that grade before they will be considered for promotion to staff sergeant; staff sergeants need at least 20 months' in grade for promotion to technical sergeant; and technical sergeants are required to have at least 24 months' in grade before promotion to master sergeant.

The new time-in-grade scale, as compared with that in effect during fiscal 1954, is as follows:

	New	Old
E-6	24	18
E-5	20	15
E-4	15	10
E-3	12	10
E-2	12	10
E-1	End of boot training

NEW WAF SUMMER UNIFORM

Air Force officials report that the new optional summer uniform for WAF personnel now can be purchased on a tailor-made basis, following release of specifications to tailors.

The design is the same as that for the winter blues with the exception of the skirt, which is six-gored and without pleats. The material is described as "silver tan, shade 193," and may be a wool and dacron mixture, worsted or gabardine.

The shirtwaist, identical in design to the authorized uniform of blue oxford cloth, will be silver tan poplin with dark blue tabs under the collar.

During duty hours, the uniform will be worn with either the flight cap or the dress hat with a silver tan hat cover, silver tan shirtwaist, black shoes and black purse. After duty hours, the white shirtwaist may be worn, with white gloves, white hatcover, black shoes and black purse.

Pistol Trophy Goes On Pentagon Display, Army Seeks Its Retention At Camp Perry

The Army has taken formal possession of the Gold Cup Trophy signifying victory in the National Trophy Team Match in the 1953 pistol competition at Camp Perry, Ohio, and hopes to keep it following the 1954 contest in August and September.

C of S Presents Cup

The Gold Cup Trophy was formally presented to Army Chief of Staff General Matthew B. Ridgway in ceremonies held 6 July at the Pentagon.

The Presentation was made by Lt. Col. Ellis Lea, of Ft. Benning, Ga., captain of the four-man Army team which scored 1103 points out of a possible 1200. The Los Angeles Police Department team placed second in the 1953 competition with 1099 points.

The National Trophy Team Match is a four-man competition usually held during the National Rifle and Pistol Matches sponsored by the National Rifle Association. The match, which draws contestants from military and civilian pistol teams and clubs, is annually sponsored by the Army. The Gold Cup Trophy, emblematic of the championship, was first placed in competition in 1920 after it was presented by the Minister of China to the Secretary of War in 1919.

Names on Trophy

The trophy, engraved with the names of winners of past years, will remain in General Ridgway's office until the 1954 National Rifle and Pistol Matches. The Army will retain permanent possession of a small miniature of the large gold cup.

Informally presented to Lt. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, Chief of Army Field Forces, at the Camp Perry matches last fall, the trophy had remained in the possession of the National Rifle Association until its recent presentation.

The Army's 1954 Rifle and Pistol teams, selected in the first annual All-Army Rifle and Pistol Matches at Ft. Benning last week, went into training this week for the National Matches starting next month at Camp Perry.

Members of the team which won the match were:

M/Sgt. Huelet L. Benner, USMA, West Point, N. Y.

Maj. Ben C. Curtis, USAREUR.

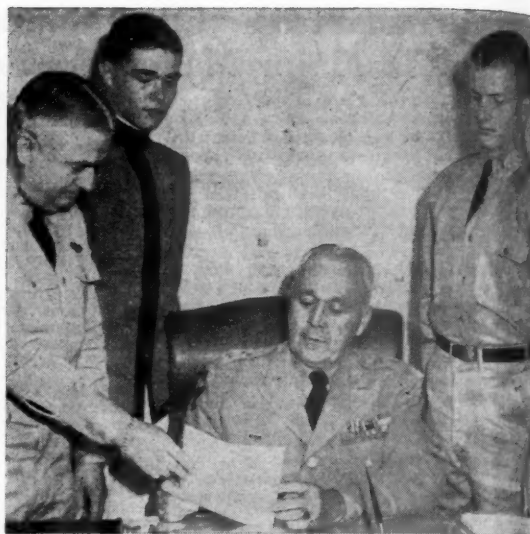

CWO O. K. Weinmeister, Ft. Knox, Ky.

Capt. L. E. Enterkin, Georgia Mil. Dist., Atlanta, Ga.

THE WOMEN'S ARMY CORPS CENTER at Ft. McClellan, Ala., officially came into being on 1 July when Lt. Col. Lucille Odberth signed the General Order activating the Center and making her the first commandant, pending the arrival of Lt. Col. Eleanor C. Sullivan, who remained at Ft. Lee, Va. to assist in deactivating the center there. Witnessing the signing of General Order No. 1 is Col. M. E. Halloran, Commanding Officer, Ft. McClellan, Ala.

MECHANICAL MULE

—Designed as a replacement for the old Army Mule, this "Mechanical Mule," is shown being tested at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md. The Mule, developed by Willis Motors and the Army's Detroit Arsenal, weighs only 750 pounds and is first military vehicle able to carry a load greater than its own weight — half a ton.

With speeds ranging from 1 to 25 m.p.h., it can be ridden, led like a horse or guided with one hand (as above), leaving the operator's gun arm free. Overall height of only 27 inches gives it lowest silhouette of any military vehicle. Mechanical Mule was designed to take load off foot soldier's back by transporting ammunition and other supplies up to frontline positions.

Cuts Army Quarters

it is important to limit our military expenditures, the committee believes that this replacement program can be spread over a longer period of time."

As passed by the House, the construction bill provided approximately $270 million for the Army, of which $96.4 million (or 36 per cent) was to be used to build permanent barracks and bachelor officer quarters. The Senate Committee approved only $230 million, of which $54.6 million (or 24 per cent) is set aside for troop housing and BOQ spaces.

In approving the "lesser, yet substantial, program" for the Army, the Committee said it achieved the reductions "by reducing the authorizations by one-half at those installations where more than one barracks or BOQ was requested. At installations where only one barracks or BOQ was proposed, these items have been left intact."

The Army had based its plea for the "better quarters" program on President Eisenhower's budget-message statement that decent housing is essential if the Armed Services are to retain their hard-core personnel.

As approved by the Senate Committee, the military construction bill now provides (in round figures): $399 million for the Air Force; $229 million for the Army and $209 million for the Navy-Marine Corps. An additional $462,000, the same amount voted by the House, is provided for the Alaska Communications System.

THE AIRFRAME'S THE SAME —THE POWER'S TURBO-PROP

Here is the Convair YC-131C Military Transport, a conversion to Allison Turbo-Prop power of the Model 340 Convair-Liner. Modified under an Air Force contract, the YC-131C is now flying powered by two Allison YT56 Turbo-Prop engines driving Aeroproducts propellers.

With this installation the Air Force is leading the way in testing the practical operating usefulness of Turbo-Prop engines—paving the way for the change from reciprocating to Turbo-Prop engines in transport and logistic aircraft.

Allison Turbo-Prop design and performance characteristics can help today's transports meet tomorrow's advanced operational requirements of:

- Increased Payloads • Higher Cruising Speeds
- Lower Fuel Cost • Less Maintenance Time and Cost

- Shorter Take-offs and Landings • Greater Passenger Comfort
- Reduced Ground Handling Time
- Reduced Crew Fatigue

Since December 1950, Allison has conducted extensive flight tests with its own Turbo-Liner to exploit the advantages inherent in Turbo-Prop power for transport service. In addition, the Navy is accumulating experience in the Douglas A2D Skyhawk and the Convair R3Y Tradewind—also powered by Allison Turbo-Prop engines driving Aeroproducts propellers.

Today that pioneering is paying off in the availability of Turbo-Prop engines and propellers which will enable military and commercial aircraft to carry bigger payloads, farther, faster and more economically.

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

House Group Approves Creation of Navy Medical Service Corps Chief (Captain)

Legislation to create a Chief of the Navy's Medical Service Corps, with the rank of Captain, was approved on 24 June by the House Armed Services Committee.

RAdm. H. L. Pugh, Surgeon General of the Navy, told the Arents Subcommittee during hearings on the bill that the Medical Service Corps, with expanded functions and a present strength of over 900, "requires an officer with the prestige and authority of higher rank."

He said need for the legislation "stems solely from the fact that although the MSC is authorized 17 captains, there has not yet been one appointed and in the normal course of events under existing law it is not likely that one will be appointed by promotion in due course for at least three years."

In his judgment, Admiral Pugh said, enactment of the bill (HR 2224) will "improve the administrative efficiency of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, and provide an additional incentive for a career in the MSC."

USN Shifts Seven Flags; All Aviation Officers

Seven major Aviation flag officer assignment changes will be made by the Navy during the next several weeks.

RAdm. Charles R. Brown, USN, Deputy Director, Joint Strategic Plans Group, Joint Chiefs of Staff, has been named to the Joint Strategic Survey Committee, JCS.

RAdm. Robert E. Blick, jr., USN, who is currently serving on the Staff of Commander Air Force, Pacific Fleet, will shift to the Office of the Chief of Naval Material.

RAdm. Richard W. Ruble, USN, presently Director, Aviation Plans Division, Naval Operations, will assume command of Carrier Division Three.

RAdm. Harry D. Felt, USN, who is now Commander, Carrier Division Three, will report to the Chief of Naval Operations for duty.

RAdm. Truman J. Hedding, USN, Commander, Formosa Patrol Force, Pacific Fleet, with additional duty as Commander, Fleet Air Wing One, is slated to become Deputy Director, Joint Strategic Plan Group, Joint Chiefs of Staff.

RAdm. Frederick N. Kivette, USN, the Chief of Staff and Aide to Commander Air Force, Atlantic Fleet, will succeed Admiral Hedding in his dual command.

RAdm. Robert B. Pirie, USN, now serving as Deputy Commander-in-Chief, Naval Forces Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean and as Chief of Staff and Aide to the Commander-in-Chief, Naval Forces Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean, has been ordered as Deputy Chief of Staff and Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Operations, Commander-in-Chief, Atlantic Fleet.

OK MSC CAPTAIN

Creation of a Chief of the Navy Medical Service Corps was approved this week by the House.

SWAG Board Convenes At USMC Headquarters

The first Standard Written Agreement Board to recommend Reserve Marines for active duty contracts of from one to five years will be convened at Marine Headquarters on 23 August.

The active duty contracts, which will number approximately 700 for officers and a "substantial number" for enlisted personnel, will be issued only after application has been made. The deadline for applications to reach Marine Headquarters is 10 August.

All but a small percentage of the Agreements will be awarded to officers who will serve in the Reserve program and to those having critical occupational specialties who will serve in the Regular Marines.

The normal grade distribution, the Marine Corps said, will permit only a relatively small percentage of the Agreements to be issued to officers above the grade of captain. The grade which an officer might attain during the period covered by a requested agreement will be a factor taken under consideration by the SWAG Board.

Agreements will not be issued to officers who have completed less than 15 months' active duty. Before the completion of 15 months' active duty, however, officers in that category may be selected for Agreements which will become effective upon the completion of the required period.

The Marine Corps also stated that the normal release date of an officer, who is serving on active duty with an unexpired voluntary extension and who makes application for an Agreement, will not be affected by his failure to be recommended by the SWAG Board.

The Marine Corps particularly desires applications from officers in the following categories: Electronics specialists, Naval aviators whose initial commissioning date is subsequent to 31 Dec. 1946, and lawyers.

Agreements will not be entered into with officers who have twice failed of selection.

Future SWAG Boards will be convened by General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., USMC, Commandant of the Marine Corps, as the needs of the Service dictate.

Detailed information concerning active duty agreements are given in Marine Corps Memorandum No. 49-54.

F4D Skyray Betters Sound in Delivery Flight

The first production model of the F4D Skyray jet interceptor exceeded the speed of sound in level flight on its maiden delivery flight to the Navy.

Equipped with a more powerful engine, this model of the batwinged Skyray had never been airborne before. This is the first Navy plane capable of supersonic combat performance in level flight, Douglas Aircraft Company's El Segundo (Calif.), Division said.

The craft is powered by a Pratt and Whitney J-57 turbojet engine with an afterburner.

Douglas Test Pilot Bob Rahn, who was at the controls of the Navy flattop interceptor, said that after turning on the Skyray's afterburner, he was airborne to a thousand feet and shot to a 6,500 foot altitude before cutting it off.

Rahn said that he made the afterburner takeoff from Los Angeles International Airport in about half the distance it normally takes to lift off without an afterburner.

The new engine provides the Skyray with about 10,000 pounds of thrust at takeoff, while its afterburner provides thousands of pounds of additional thrust for sudden bursts of speed or for fast climbs from Navy carriers to intercept enemy aircraft, Douglas officials said.

The F4D Skyray successfully passed full carrier qualifications in September 1953, and is now in stepped-up production at Douglas' El Segundo Division.

The supersonic jet is expected to be in operation with the Fleet in 1955.

—the U. S. Navy's Douglas A3D

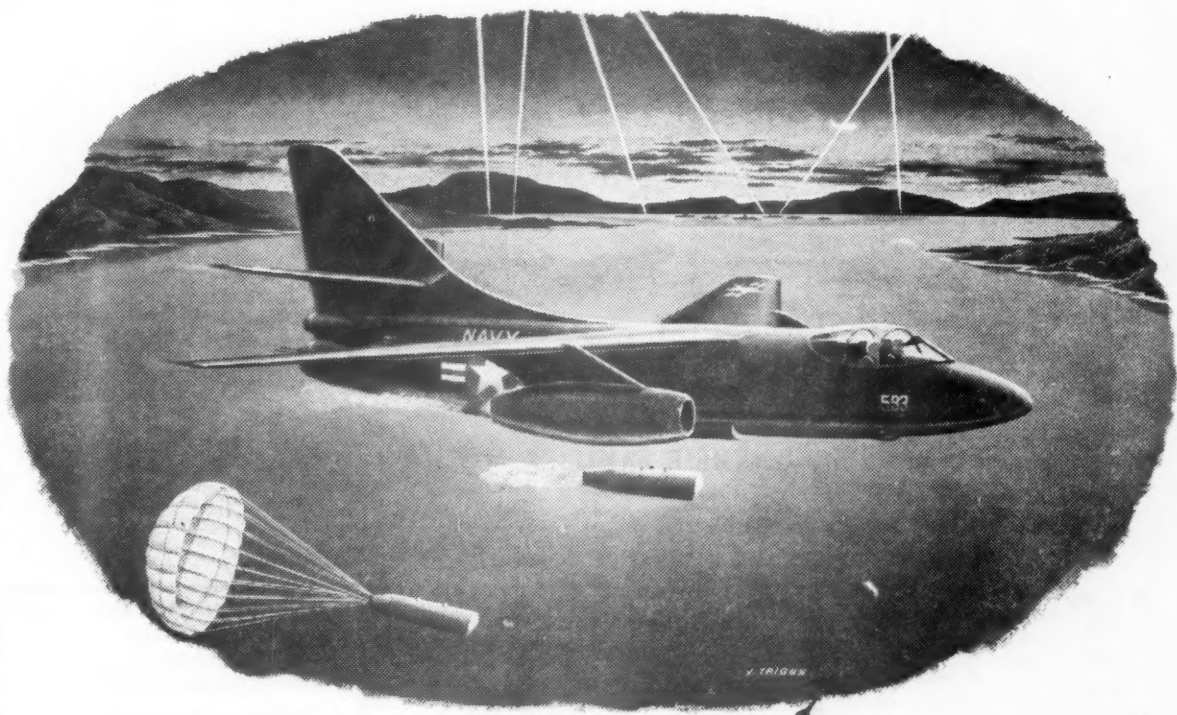

Compact in design, outstanding for its work-weight ratio, the carrier-based twin jet A3D typifies a Douglas-led trend toward less complex combat aircraft.

Simplification, which gives A3D greater speed, range, and payload than any comparable bomber, also results in great versatility. The Douglas A3D can fly high-altitude attack missions or serve as a mine layer. Largest of all carrier-based aircraft, it can handle—in its internal bomb bay—the bulkiest bombs, torpedoes, or other naval munitions designated for carrier action.

Design of A3D is another example of Douglas leadership in aviation. Developing planes that can fly faster and farther with a bigger payload is a basic Douglas concept.

Two New Courses Set At Extension Institute

The USAF Extension Course Institute at Gunter AFB, Ala., has activated two specialized courses in airman career fields — Carrier Repeater Mechanic (#3622) and Statistical Specialist Airman (#8311).

Gen. Bulger To USAF

Brig. Gen. Joseph A. Bulger, USAF, Continental Air Command Deputy for Personnel at Mitchel AFB, N. Y., will report shortly for duty as Assistant Chief of Staff, Personnel, for U. S. Air Forces Europe.

He was named vice commander of the First Air Force at Mitchel in March 1950 and in September 1951 became acting commanding general, filling that assignment until February 1952. He has been Deputy for Personnel since November 1952.

Static May Be Aid In Locating, Tracking Storms

The USAF Weather Service will participate in a series of tests in an attempt to locate and track storms and tornadoes by determining the area of greatest static intensity.

In cooperation with the USAF Air Research and Development Command, AWS will use "sferics" equipment in the experiment. "Sferics" is an abbreviation of the term "atmospheric discharges" as applied to radio static. By using a special scanning device developed by the Army Signal Corps, it is possible to determine the direction from which the most intense static is reaching the radio antenna.

In the test, three radio sites will be used: McConnell AFB, Kans., Altus AFB, Okla., and Camp Chaffee, Ark. Lines drawn on a map to the direction of the worst static received by each station should intersect at the position of the most intense storm area.

"Sferic" tests are being conducted as part of the annual "Tornado Alley" project carried on by the 6th Weather Squadron at Tinker AFB, Okla., which each year sets up a network of mobile weather units in the so-called "tornado belt" of Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, moving northward into other states as seasonal changes dictate.

General Clark's Task. The nation should be heartened to learn that General Mark W. Clark, USA-Ret., will head a task force of the Hoover Commission to make a study of the organization and operation of the Central Intelligence Agency, particularly in view of disturbing talk that all is not well in the CIA. There is no doubt but that such a vital and sensitive agency would be a major target for infiltration and attack by any possible enemies and the public should be assured that every defense against such action is being and will be taken.

By putting the direction of the study in the hands of such an outstanding and courageous citizen as General Clark, the President and the Hoover Commission have assured a thorough understanding and unbiased report free of political influence.

In discussing the appointment at his press conference this week, President Eisenhower referred to General Clark as one whom he had known since they were both cadets at the U. S. Military Academy and for whose ability and patriotism and loyalty he had the highest respect. The President expressed the opinion that he would do a grand job.

It is interesting to note that the President has made great use of the skilled services of a number of other officers with whom he served and whom he knows well and in whom he has the utmost confidence. General James A. Van Fleet, USA-Ret., is his Ambassador on special mission to the Far East. Lt. Gen. Joseph M. Swing, USA-Ret., is carrying on outstandingly in the difficult job as head of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

It is fortunate for the Nation that the Services have produced men of such high ability and that the Administration has acted to place them in positions where their experience and integrity can continue to be utilized after their retirement from military life.

Family Care. Failure of the Congressional Committees to take up the Administration measure to assure adequate medical care for the dependents of Service personnel means that this vitally-necessary legislation will be put off until next year's session.

This delay will have a bad effect on the career incentive program of the Armed Forces. Failure to be assured of the physical care of their families will weigh heavily in the considerations of the many hard-core professionals who must make up their minds during the next year whether to remain in the Service or enter upon a more lucrative civilian career.

It should be pointed out, however, that, in spite of the opposition of the American Medical Association, this failure to act is due principally to the way the Armed Services Committees programmed their work. In fact, the pending bills are sponsored by the chairmen of those Committees—Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.) and Representative Dewey Short (R-Mo.) both of whom, as well as many members of their groups, have deplored existing conditions and expressed a determination that they be improved.

Public opinion, too, is strongly in back of this and other proposals to better the lot of Service personnel. Daily newspapers and national magazines frequently discuss sympathetically the problems of career incentives for the Armed Services. Particularly interesting in this respect is the article by Land Kaderli, "How the Air Force Woos Uneasy Wives," which appears in the 3 July issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

Thus there is every reason to believe that Congress ultimately will approve some sort of program for the medical care of Service wives and children. But it is unfortunate that they do not realize delays such as this mean that the drain on the reservoir of skilled commissioned and non-commissioned officers continues with its resultant high cost of replacements and lowered efficiency.

Civilian Control. The point has about been reached where every change in the organization of the defenses is being justified with a statement that it "strengthens civilian control." From the first major reorganization of the Department of Defense a year and a half ago to the current reorganization of the Department of the Army, commentators in and out of the Administration have hailed them as moves "to strengthen civilian control."

Yet students of military history know that there has always been civilian control of the Armed Forces in the United States. Not only is the civilian President also the Constitutional Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces, but he in fact exercises that power at all times both directly and through his civilian secretaries. He is advised, now as during World War II and the Korean War, by his Joint Chiefs of Staff—but they only recommend, the President must approve or reject. In the routine operation of the Departments, the military personnel only study and recommend; the Secretaries must approve. Any officer who has ever served in Washington knows that the constant watch-word in his daily work is "what will the Secretary think?"

The current reorganizations were designed to make the Departments operate more efficiently—to provide better channels for the flow of ideas and actions between the military studies and the civilian executives. Why is it necessary to constantly justify them with the shibboleth that they "strengthen civilian control" when there never has been any question as to civilian control? The popular use of the expression is really an indirect way of charging either that the civilian secretaries aren't exercising their authority or that the military are over-stepping their bounds.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—Naval aviators have shot 5,521 Japanese warplanes out of the air since Pearl Harbor, while losing 1,260 planes in aerial combat. At least 65 per cent of the U. S. Navy airmen shot down have been rescued, the Navy Department stated this week. In addition to the Jap aircraft destroyed in the air, Naval Aviators have, in 1944 alone, destroyed at least 738 Jap planes on the ground losing only 17 Navy planes in these operations.

50 Years Ago—While it was a foregone conclusion that both of the great political parties would declare for the resolute maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine and for naval expansion on a scale commensurate with the purpose implied in that declaration, the fact that they have done so in positive and unmistakable language will be hailed by the country at large with hearty approval.

90 Years Ago—Russian military strength now appears from a digest (official) to be as follows: Active troops in the field (1 Jan. 1864) 808,670; local troops in field, 127,925; Reserve and non-combatants, 199,380—a total of 1,135,975. Our advices indicate that, with the threatening appearance of affairs in Northern Europe, and especially in the present doubt whether the Conference may be able to adjust pacifically the Schleswig-Holstein dispute, Russia has put itself on a still better war-footing.

"Old Army" Had Its Merits

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

A lot has been written in "Letters to the Editor" lately on uniform changes, pay raises, privileges, etc. I will not argue the merits of any of them, but I will state that you cannot buy morale, and on this score, I think the Army is completely missing the boat.

I am a Company Commander and have served both in the "old" and the "new" Army, and here is what I have found to be three big morale factors the old army had, and the new one doesn't, and a brief discussion on each of them:

a. Unit rotation: Today men are rotated as individuals. You can no longer build unit "Esprit de Corps" as the majority of the men know they won't be in the unit long. Unfortunately the attitude of the men that "The best outfit I belonged to is the one I just left" is all too true. Ranking NCO's are shuffled around into any job that calls for their rank, whether that is the job they want or are qualified for. This is one big reason NCO's are leaving their Army careers. Situations like this also don't help the units to which these men are assigned. I think men should be allowed to enlist in the unit of their choice, and never transferred out of it except at their own request. You would soon have a hard core in every unit, morale would go up, and so would re-enlistments. Today we draft a man for two years. He is trained, sent to Korea and is back home again after spending an average of one year in Korea. Under unit rotation, a separate company through a division, could receive their draftees here in the states, train them, (they would probably receive better training too), go overseas with them, serve their time, rotate back to the states in time to discharge their draftees and start the cycle over again. Pipeline units could be done away with, at a great saving in money. There are many more advantages to unit rotation which I will not attempt to list here.

b. Bands: To put it bluntly, we have taken the romance out of the Army, and have made it a very dull, drab existence. I think every unit from a separate battalion on up should have its own band. The average person goes to a parade not to see soldiers, but because he wants to hear the bands.

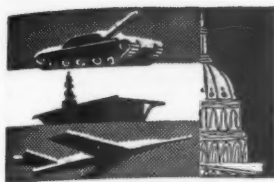

It's pretty sad when soldiers have to parade without a band, or with a high school band with a tempo of 140, or with an army band so far ahead they can't even hear the music. As I understand it, regimental bands were done away with as an unnecessary expense. We are spending much more money now trying to buy morale than the bands ever cost. The bandsman in combat were stretcher bearers. Today we use riflemen. Where is the saving in that? Give us back our bands, so parades will again be enjoyable, and evening band concerts will keep many men happy and at home, instead of getting into trouble through boredom.

c. Buglers: In the company, the bugler played the same part the band played for the regiment. There are thousands of men in the Army today who wouldn't recognize "pay-call" if they heard it. P.A. systems gradually replaced the bugler, and today you very seldom hear a P.A. system anymore. Men no longer get up, meet all formations, and go to sleep, by bugle calls. Men that never know these days, have a feeling they are missing something in this Army life, but they don't know what it is. They haven't connected the bugler they see in the movies with the fact that there aren't any today. Those of us who do remember those days, miss them. There again, money is being wasted. The bugler used to be the company runner, and today it is a rifleman that does the job. The Army has also lost another means of communication. Instead of the bugler of the guard blowing "officers call," today it takes many telephone calls to accomplish what one used to.

Maybe I'm just living in the past, but I wonder how many other soldiers are too!

JOSEPH W. SHORT,
Capt, CE

defense ON CAPITOL HILL

THE HIGH COST OF LAND in and around military and naval bases is partly the fault of the Services, the Senate Armed Services Committee contends. In reporting the military construction bill, the group said it "has been disappointed" to find that Congress is often called upon to approve purchase of land "at stations where the initiation of the first phases of a program have increased the cost of land acquisition." The Committee "strongly" recommended that the Defense Department "hereafter make a complete presentation of later requirements at the start of any new project."

A PRIORITY LIST for items in the military construction bill was drawn up by Chairman Saltonstall's (R-Mass.) Committee. First place went to research and development; TACAN, a new navigational aid, won second priority; strategic weapons placed third; and strategic defenses, including NIKE and AC and W, took fourth. Family housing and enlisted barracks were further down on the list—numbers seven and nine, respectively. Recreational facilities (theatres, gyms, chapels, clubs, swimming pools, etc.) were lumped together as number six on the priority list.

MODERNIZATION and improvement of merchant vessels in the reserve fleet is provided in a bill (S 3546) favorably reported by the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. The measure is designed to bolster the declining economy of the private shipbuilding industry and to revitalize the national defense reserve fleet. The Committee found that private shipyards throughout the country "desperately need ship-construction and ship-repair work" if the U. S. is to maintain "even a minimum shipbuilding and ship-repairing defense potential." The Committee recommended that $45 million be spent on 205 merchant-type vessels now in the reserve fleet "which would be urgently needed on mobilization day."

GEN. CLIFTON B. CATES, USMC-Ret., was honored on the Senate floor by Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.) who said Tennessee is proud of her "distinguished son," of his record and his "long, faithful service." General Cates, former Commandant of the Marine Corps, was retired on 1 July while serving as Commandant of the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va.

THE "HISTORIC SHIPS" BILL has been cleared for the White House with provisions for restoration of the USS Constitution at a cost of $890,000 and annual maintenance expenditures of $46,000. The measure also provides for "minimum repairs" to the Constellation and Hartford, after which they will be towed to Baltimore, Md., and Mobile, Ala., respectively, and transferred by gift to those cities, to the State government or to some non-profit making organization for restoration as public memorials. The Navy also is directed to maintain the Olympia and Oregon for one year pending an application for donation of either or both of the vessels for restoration as public memorials.

LIKE TOPSY, the bill providing four-star rank on the retired list for a number of WWII commanders, has "just grown." As initially introduced, the measure provided full general rank for eight lieutenant generals (three of whom are now deceased) who commanded an Army or the Army Ground Forces during WWII. The Senate added the name of a ninth officer. When the measure came up this week on the House floor, two more officers were added. Later, they were approved by the Senate and sent to the White House.

APPOINTMENT of female nurses would be authorized in the National Guard of the United States and in the National Guard of each State, Territory and the District of Columbia, under the terms of a bill introduced by Representative Patterson (R-Conn.). The women would have to be between the ages of 21 and 55 and could be appointed in grades ranging from second lieutenant to lieutenant colonel.

WITHDRAWALS from Service savings deposits are made possible for emergencies by legislation passed this week by both Houses of Congress. The Senate and House passed their own bills on the same day (each identical with the other) and the Senate later accepted the House bill and cleared it for the President's signature.

The following bills were introduced:
HR 9015—Rep Heller (D-NY), liberalizes retirement provisions for Reservists who served on active duty during both WWI and WWII.

HR 9698—Rep Short (R-Mo), authorizes appointment of an assistant chaplain at West Point.

HR 9740—Rep Reed (R-Ill), provides for return of longevity pay to certain Army and Air Force nurses.

Gen. Sheldon Tells of Pendleton Training

5th Marine Divisions and the entire 4th Marine Division.

Since the commencement of hostilities in Korea, more than 215,000 Marines have been trained at Camp Pendleton. This figure includes the 1st and 3rd Marine Divisions, which were organized and trained at Camp Pendleton, over 117,000 replacements for these divisions and 52,000 others in various specialties (including infantry).

Its vastness is an asset. So large that it must be divided into sub-bases, Camps Pulgas, San Onofre, Horno, Chappo, Margarita and Del Mar, were known to WWII Marines as Tent Camps One, Two, Three, etc. Their tents have now been replaced by semi-permanent and modern buildings.

Each area is complete within itself. Each has its own barracks, instruction halls, mess hall, theater and exchange. Several have swimming pools, libraries, gymnasiums, bowling alleys and other recreational facilities.

Camp Pendleton's rugged terrain proved doubly valuable in training Marines for the Korean Conflict. The Base's mountain ranges duplicated those encountered by the trainee in Korea.

Special training is given Marines in attacking villages such as are found in Korea. Even the architecture of the "Combat Village" is Oriental to further heighten realism for the trainee.

Now faced with training and processing replacements for two Marine divisions in the Orient—the 1st in Korea and the 3d in Japan—Camp Pendleton continues to maintain a busy schedule.

Key Position in Training

Camp Pendleton occupies a key position in the current training cycle for new Marines. After he completes his ten-week recruit (boot) training at San Diego Recruit Depot and a short leave, the young Leatherneck reports to Camp Pendleton.

The First and Second Infantry Training Regiments take him in hand for a month of individual combat training. This is done in the case of nearly every new Marine before he is permanently assigned, whether it be to school, to a post or to a replacement draft for overseas duty.

Camp Pendleton, too, is where all Marines going overseas receive their final combat training—indoctrination for the new ones, refresher for the old timers. To trim them down—and keep them trim—the combat trainees are taken on sweat-producing, muscle-hardening hikes over rugged hills to their instruction sites.

There are facilities for indoor training and there is an inclement weather training schedule. But rarely does the Marine spend any time indoors. Much of the instruction is at night. All of it is conducted, in so far as possible, under conditions simulated to resemble those he might encounter later.

Training is up to date and realistic. Not only does the course include training in village combat, but also attack of fortified positions, defense against air attack and small unit and tank-infantry tactics. Individual action at close quarters is stressed. Training emphasizes the individual in combat.

Specialist Schools

Combat training is not limited to the infantryman. There are certain specialist schools operated on the Base as well. The Supporting Arms Training Regiment includes such units as a non-commissioned officers school, a tank maintenance school, a field medical training battalion and a tracked vehicle training battalion.

Located in the heart of the base is the Staging Regiment, an administrative unit that prepares the Leathernecks for overseas duty. Here final details such as dental checks and physical examinations, and clothing and equipment issues and inspections are accomplished.

Directly geared to conditions that are met in Korea or are apt to be encountered in any cold weather operation is the training conducted by the Cold Weather Battalion, a satellite base of Camp Pendleton located near Bridgeport, California, in the High Sierras.

The battalion conducts training in the use of cold-weather clothing and in survival maneuver and leadership required in sub-zero temperatures under simulated battle conditions. Realistic battle conditions are attained through the use of aggressor forces. Replacements for overseas units during the winter months spend a week at the High Sierra site.

Twenty-Nine Palms

Another distant installation, operationally a part of Camp Pendleton, is the Marine Corps Training Center located at the desert community of Twenty-nine Palms, Calif.

Here, with an area of 450 square miles of desert and mountain in which to operate, Marine artillerymen and pilots practice their military specialties with maximum freedom of operation.

Also based at Camp Pendleton are units of the Fleet Marine Force, Pacific. Under the command of Brig. Gen. Joseph W. Earnshaw, Force Troops consists of engineer, reconnaissance, field and AAA artillery, communications, amphibian tractor and combat service units.

In addition to conducting certain of their training on the base, Force Troops also utilize the facilities of the desert base at Twenty-nine Palms.

A large Naval Hospital furnishes medical support for units in the Camp Pendleton area, and during the Korean Conflict cared for wounded returning from overseas.

Today—as for the past 12 years—Camp Pendleton stands ready to furnish combat-ready Marines for instant and effective duty wherever they may be needed.

Lackland Sites Renamed After AF, Aviation Heroes

A four-year program to rename streets, buildings, fields and other sites at Lackland AFB, Tex., in honor of Air Force and aviation leaders is nearing an end.

The most complicated changeover was the redesignation of 281 street names. All now have been changed except Kelly Drive, the approachway from North Kelly AFB.

Selection of appropriate names for a few remaining parade grounds and key buildings has been set for 1 July. Most of the sites and main structures of Lackland have already been retitled with erection of accompanying signs and plaques in foyers and entrance ways. Theatres, service clubs and other principal buildings were re-named in honor of distinguished Air Force general officers more than a year ago.

Termination of the memorialization program is being accomplished by a committee headed by Lt. Col. Lee C. Black. Other committee members are Capt. Harry Chupack, Capt. John S. Goodman, Capt. William G. Jones, Capt. Fred Smith, jr., 1st Lt. John M. Connolly, jr., and 2d Lt. Donald E. Walker.

A.M.A. OPPOSITION has killed chances of the Family Medical Care Bill during the present session of Congress. The Defense Department, disappointed because the American Medical Assn. was carefully cut in on all preliminary planning, will ask approval of the dependent care measure next year as a priority item.

PENTAGON STRATEGISTS believe that opposition to the family care will be considerably less effective in an off-election year than is the case this year. The President, having spoken of the need for improved family care in messages to Congress this year, undoubtedly will make reference to this matter in the State of the Union and Budget Messages which will reach Congress in January.

FIRST WARRANT OFFICER ever elected to the National Council of the Reserve Officers Assn. is CWO Adrian J. McShane, who is assigned to Camp Chaffee, Ark. At its June convention, the ROA adopted a resolution giving W.O.'s fully accredited voting privileges.

CLASS OF USMA '58, which entered West Point this week, includes 770 cadets—333 of whom are sons of Service personnel. The class includes a set of twins, G. G. Roosma and W. A. Roosma, sons of Col. and Mrs. John S. Roosma, Governors Island, N. Y.

WAF STRENGTH, now about 10,000, will drop to 5000 or 6000 in the next year. There will be no force-outs; the reduction will be accomplished through normal attrition.

LOADED WITH LIEUTENANTS, mainly ROTC graduates, the Army will press for a change in Defense Department policy which would permit abbreviated active duty tours for large numbers of these officers graduating in the future, contingent upon their accepting a strict obligation for service with Reserve units. The Army thought it had won O.K. for such a plan in fiscal '55.

THE PRESIDENT'S BUDGET, as sent to Capitol Hill in January, provided for such a procedure. But then a switch was made. The Army was told that all ROTC graduates must serve two years. During the past 2 years, more than 26,000 ROTC graduates have been brought on active duty for full tours.

GRADUATES DEGREES would be conferred by the USAF Institute of Technology at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, if Congress goes along with a new legislative request. The Navy's counterpart, the Postgraduate School at Monterey, Calif., has received such authority from Congress.

THE NAVY AND MARINES will issue about 4000 contract tours for Reservists this summer; the Army and Air Force, however, haven't yet come up with any firm plans.

AIRBORNE EMPHASIS in the Army will be heightened with establishment of Field Forces Board No. 5 at Ft. Bragg, N. C., home of the XVIII Airborne Corps and the 82d Airborne Division. Field Forces Board No. 1 will be shifted from Bragg to the Artillery Center at Ft. Sill, Okla. No. 2 is at the Armored Center, Ft. Knox, Ky.; No. 3 at the Infantry Center, Ft. Benning, Ga.; No. 4, at the AAA and Guided Missiles Branch of the Artillery School, Ft. Bliss, Tex.

ARMY PUBLIC RELATIONS continually are being boosted by the versatile helicopter. Latest goodwill achievements were the round-the-clock rescue and relief missions by 'copters from the Medical Field Service School, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., during the Rio Grande flood last week.

MAJ. GEN. K. B. LAWTON, USA, CG at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., whose name figured prominently in the Army-McCarthy hearings, has been on the sick list since May, but is expected to complete convalescent leave on 20 July. He is due to retire this November.

ASST. SECDEF HANNAH will leave the Pentagon as of 1 Aug. He's counting on National Security Council endorsement of the new plan for Reserve Forces as the last major achievement in the personnel field before returning to full-time duties as president of Michigan State College.

HALF A MILLION arithmetic operations are required for computation of Air Force wartime personnel requirements by occupational specialty. Computations are made for various mobilization and capabilities war plans. Heretofore, detailed computations on a routine basis were considered too costly. Now there's a solution: it's UNIVAC, the high-speed electronic-computer.

A ONE-TIME DRUMMER in dance bands led by Tommy Dorsey, Les Brown and Jack Teagarden is now enrolled in the Squadron Surgeons Course at the Air Force School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph AFB, Tex. He is Lt. William J. Bryan, Jr. The class also includes Maj. Knus M. Jacobsen of Denmark—who has specialized in treatment of alcoholics.

THE NEW PX CHIEF, Maj. Gen. H. L. Peckham, USA, is expected to continue the campaign initiated by his predecessor, Maj. Gen. E. H. White, USAF, to regain authority for sale of needed items now prohibited from PX sale in most cases. Priority items in this category are automobile accessories and children's clothing.

CURRENTLY UNDER STUDY by top Army officials is a plan to reduce by half the number of MOS designations for enlisted men. Aim is to wind up with about 300.

MORE THAN $330 MILLION in Wherry Housing, comprising some 37,663 units, has been approved by the Air Force since the program was started, with 10,006 additional units contemplated at a cost of about $90 million. As of mid-June, there were 33,356 units occupied, on 54 bases, with an average rental of $80.38.

ARMY'S INVENTORY of clothing and equipage, including items on order, has been cut during the past three years from a value of $2.2 billion to $800 million. In the reduction, $285 million was returned to the U. S. Treasury.

THE PRESIDENT'S PEN, used in signing the Warrant Officers Career Bill, has been presented to the Coast Guard Chief Warrant and Warrant Officers Assn. The White House acted at the request of Rep. Leslie Arends (R-Ill.), of the Armed Services Committee.

USN And USMC Units

Eligible For ROK Award

Members and former members of the Navy and Marine Corps may now accept foreign awards for service in Korea. The foreign nation tendering the decorations, orders, or emblems must be participating with or under the United Nations command and the award must be identical to those which are conferred upon members of their own military forces. Under a recent law, servicemen who served in specified units after 26 June 1950, within the territorial limits of Korea or in Korean waters are entitled to wear the Korean Presidential Unit Citation.

Units eligible for the Korean Presidential Unit Citation and dates of action are as follows:

The Seventh Fleet, July 1949 to July 1952;
Task Force 95, 12 Sept. 1950 to 3 Aug. 1951;
Task Force 90, July 1950 to March 1951;
Fleet Activities Chinnampo, 17 Nov. 1950 to 5 Dec. 1950; Fleet Activities Hungnam, 22 Nov. 1950 to 9 Dec. 1950; Fleet Air Wing Six, July 1950 to June 1951; Fleet Activities Inchon, 15 Sept. 1950 to 5 Jan. 1951 and 25 March 1951 to 31 Aug. 1951; Fleet Activities Wonsan, 21 Oct. 1950 to 10 Dec. 1950; Surgical Team No. Three, 15 Sept. 1950 to 15 Oct. 1950; Surgical Team No. Four, 15 Sept. 1950 to 15 Oct. 1950; Fleet Activities Pusan, 16 July 1950 to 31 Aug. 1951; U. S. Naval Advisory Group, Feb. 1952 to Feb. 1953; USS Isil 1091, 7 March 1951 to 14 Aug. 1951; USS Consolation, 11 Aug. 1950 to 24 May 1951; USS Haven, 18 Oct. 1950 to 31 Aug. 1951; USS Repose, 16 Sept. 1950 to 31 July 1951; Surgical Team No. Two, 15 Sept. 1950 to 15 Oct. 1950; First Provisional Marine Brigade, 2 Aug. 1950 to 6 Sept. 1950; First Marine Aircraft Wing, 3 Aug. 1950 to 26 Feb. 1951; First Marine Division, 15 Sept. 1950 to 27 Sept. 1950; First Marine Aircraft Wing, 27 Feb. 1951 to 11 June 1953; and First Korean Marine Corps Regimental Combat Team and the U. S. Marine Corps Advisory Group Attached, 30 Oct. 1952 to 1 Nov. 1952.

Col. Walt Heads School; Col. Murray To Calif.

Col. Raymond L. Murray, USMC, who has been in command of Basic School since June 1952, has left Quantico, Va., for a new assignment at Camp Pendleton, Calif.

He was relieved by Col. Lewis W. Walt, USMC, who was assigned to the Marine Corps Educational Center at Quantico from September 1953 to June 1954.

Colonel Murray, a former commander of the Fifth Marine Regiment, First Marine Division in Korea, took part in the battles of the Naktong River Perimeter, Wolmi-Inchon, Seoul and Wonsan, in addition to participating in the Marine advance toward the Yalu River. In his promotion to colonel, he was cited by Lt. Gen. Oliver P. Smith, USMC, then Commanding General of the First Marine Division, as "one of the outstanding regimental commanders in the Marine Corps."

Colonel Walt, also a former commander of the Fifth Regiment in Korea, saw action during the Cape Gloucester campaign during WWII. During that campaign his battalion captured Agoriri Ridge which was later named Walt Ridge in his honor.

During the Korean War, his command regained Outpost Vegas from the Chinese Reds who 24 hours earlier had wiped out all Marines there in an overwhelming attack.

Both colonels hold the Navy Cross for extraordinary courage and heroism.

Radm. Cooper Commands Training Task Group

More than 1,700 Naval Reserve Midshipmen from 28 college and university Naval Reserve Officer Training Units will leave Norfolk, Va., on Monday, 12 July, on the second Midshipmen Cruise of 1954.

Radm. George R. Cooper, USN, Commander Cruiser Division Two, will command the sixteen vessel Task Group in his flagship the battleship USS Wisconsin.

During the Cruise, the Wisconsin will visit Glasgow, Scotland as the first port of call from 26 to 31 July in company with the radar picket destroyers Bordeaux and E. A. Greeno, the destroyer escorts Coates, Parle and T. E. Parker, the high speed attack transport Ruchamkin and the fleet oiler Pawcatuck.

Other ships of the force, the light cruiser Worcester, the radar picket destroyer W. R. Rush, the destroyer escorts Darby, Coolbaugh, Loesser and Delong, and the storeship Denebola will visit Dublin, Ireland over the same period.

The same groups will visit Brest, France and Portsmouth, England, respectively during the period 4 to 11 August. The groups will then rendezvous for their return trip to American waters and proceed to the Guantanamo Bay, Cuba area for the final phase of the midshipmen training, which consists principally of large and medium calibre gun-firing exercises.

Upon completion of this training, the task force will get underway for Norfolk, Va., and arrive on 3 September.

Gen. Pate Wins DSM; Six Others Decorated

Lt. Gen. Randolph McCall Pate, USMC, Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for "exceptionally meritorious service in a position of great responsibility in Korea."

General Pate, a native of South Carolina, graduated from the Virginia Military Institute in 1921 after a brief tour of enlisted service in the Army in WWI. He was commissioned a Marine shortly after graduation.

During WWII, he won the Legion of Merit twice for outstanding service in the Guadalcanal, Palau, Iwo Jima, and Okinawa operations.

General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., USMC, Commandant of the Marine Corps, also has presented Letters of Commendation with Combat "V" to six other officers.

Those decorated are: Capt. Bain McClintock, Robert C. Gunderson, Keith H. Helms and Donald B. Smith; and 1st Lts. Duwain Bjerke and Stanley A. Lahendro.

New WAVE OCS Class Convenes At Newport

The first class of WAVE officer candidates has reported to Newport, R. I.

The last class of directly commissioned WAVE officers was graduated from the Officer Indoctrination School there on 18 June.

Known as Class W-16, the 39 officer candidates will undergo indoctrination as officer candidates for the first eight weeks of the new program and as commissioned officers for the remaining eight weeks.

During the latter part of August, the OC class will be supplemented by about 30 former Reserve officer Candidates. This group of women has already completed eight weeks of indoctrination at Bainbridge, Md., prior to the close of the ROC program. Upon their arrival at Newport in August, they will take only the officer portion of the course.

Capt. Stirling To BuAer Comdr. Slason To Convair

Capt. Cedric W. Stirling, USN, Navy Bureau of Aeronautics representative at Convair's San Diego Division for the last three years, has received orders for a new assignment in Washington, D. C. He will report about 1 Aug. to the Bureau of Aeronautics where he served a previous duty tour.

Capt. Stirling

Captain Stirling will be relieved at Convair by Cdr. Frank K. Slason, USN, who is due there about 1 Sept. from his present post at the Navy's Air Turbine Test Station at Trenton, N. J.

While at Convair, Captain Stirling played an important role in the development of such Convair-built Navy aircraft such as the R3Y turboprop Trade-wind, the delta wing XF2Y Sea Dart and the vertical takeoff XFY-1, now in tethered flight tests at Moffett Field.

In the meantime, Cdr. R. L. Smith, USN, who has been assistant BuAer representative to Captain Stirling, will be acting Bureau of Aeronautics representative at Convair.

339th HUP Delivered, Last of 'Copter Contract

The 339th and last Piasecki HUP helicopter called for under the Navy's contract with that company has been delivered to Helicopter Squadron HU-2, U. S. Naval Station, Lakehurst, N. J.

A brief ceremony prior to the delivery of the aircraft was attended by Cdr. H. S. Brown, USN, Chief of the Rotary Wing Branch, Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, and Cdr. Eric Lohmann, USN, Piasecki's Aeronautics Bureau representative. Commander Brown described the HUP as "one of the best pieces of vertical hardware in the world today."

The initial development contract for three XHJP-1 helicopters was awarded to Piasecki in 1946. The first production contracts for the HUP-1 were received in August, 1949, following comprehensive evaluation tests by the Navy of the prototype aircraft. The following year, the HUP was selected as the Navy's first interim anti-submarine warfare 'copter.

Designed specifically for shipboard use, the HUP is a six-place helicopter with special features for performing rescues, rapid loading of three litter patients for medical evacuation, or for installation of sonar devices and other submarine hunting equipment.

New Camera Records Low-Level Bomb Strikes

The Air Force Research and Development Command has announced development of a new lightweight 70 mm aerial camera for recording rocket and bomb strikes of low level high speed attacks by jet aircraft.

Designated the P-2, the camera can take six pictures per second at shutter speeds as high as 1/2000th second. It also can be used to record the effects of aerial gunnery.

Two film magazines are available for the camera, one containing 15 feet of film, the other 50 feet of film. These magazines provide a choice of 75 photographs taken over a period of 12½ seconds, or 239 photos taken in about 39 seconds.

The camera is manufactured by J. A. Maurer, Inc., Long Island, N. Y., and is intended primarily for Air Force use. However, other branches of the Armed Forces, are expected to utilize the new camera.

Please send in notice of your change of address promptly.

AF ORDERS JET DRONES

The Air Force has placed a $3½-million contract for an undisclosed number of Ryan Firebee pilotless jet planes.

This is the first production order issued by the Air Force since Ryan built a limited number of the Q-2 target drones for development and service tests by the Air Research and Development Command. The new contract is the first to call for production tooling, indicating that the program has reached the stage of expanded output.

Ryan Aeronautical Company is now producing Firebees for all three services. The Air Force Firebees will be equipped with the Continental J-69 engine, which generates 1,000 pounds thrust. The Navy and Army Firebees use the Fairchild J-44 engine, which is a Navy-sponsored power plant.

B-47 Flies 600 Hours Without Engine Overhaul

A Boeing B-47 bomber at MacDill AFB, Fla., has flown 600 hours, or the equivalent of 15 times around the world, without any of its six jet engines requiring an overhaul.

Powered by General Electric J47 jets, the swept-wing craft was the first in the Strategic Air Command to go such a distance without an engine change.

If this performance were to be matched by the remainder of the 90 B-47 planes at MacDill, it would mean an annual saving of 180 engines, or $8,100,000 in cost, the Air Force said.

During the 600 hours, the record-making B-47 participated in the SAC Navigation and Bombing competition in Arizona, completed two non-stop trans-Atlantic flights, a special 12-hour mission in this country, and scores of routine training missions.

New Foreign Claims Unit Replaces War Claims Gp.

A Foreign Claims Settlement Commission has been set up to take over functions of the old War Claims Commission, the International Claims Commission and the functions assigned to the Commissioner of Claims against Russia and Russian nationals prior to 16 Nov. 1933.

The new commission will have jurisdiction over WW II prisoners of war and civilian internee claims, certain claims of religious organizations in the Philippines, administration of claims covered by a settlement of $17-million on deposit with this country by the Yugoslav Government, and certain claims of Americans against Panama.

Congress is now considering an Administration proposal to expand the present war claims program. It would provide for payment of nine new categories of claims by American citizens or nationals for personal suffering or for losses sustained in WW II and Korea against former enemy governments. A new 10th category would compensate American creditors of the Soviet Government for claims arising prior to its recognition in 1933.

Most of the claims would be paid from funds in the hands of the U. S. Government by virtue of past international agreements. Only detention benefits, attributable to Korean hostilities, would be paid out of public funds appropriated by Congress.

New Signal Corps PIO

Walter H. McDonald has been appointed to succeed Bruce Quisenberry as Chief of the Signal Corps' Office of Technical Liaison (CTL).

Mr. McDonald previously was with the Office of Price Stabilization where he was Chief of the Special Press and Trade Association Branch. Mr. Quisenberry left the Signal Corps after 12 years of service to take a position with the Automatic Electric Company, Chicago, Ill.

FORD CREATES MOBILIZATION DIVISION

A new department to collaborate with the government in the use of company resources in event of partial or complete mobilization has been announced by Ford Motor Company.

The mobilization planning department will also plan the allocation of Ford's facilities for defense work and for the production of automotive products during partial or complete mobilization.

In addition, the department will be charged with ascertaining current requirements of the government for defense products, including research and development, so that the company can continue to make the maximum contribution to the defense effort.

U. S. COAST GUARD

Secretary of The Treasury—George M. Humphrey
Commandant—Vice Adm. Alfred C. Richmond

NOMINATIONS of two Coast Guard captains to the permanent rank of rear admiral have been received by the Senate.

Capt. William W. Kenner, USCG, will become a flag officer effective on the date of Senate confirmation which is expected promptly.

At present, a vacancy exists in the Coast Guard table of organization for a Chief of the Office of Personnel. Captain Kenner served as Assistant Chief, Office of Personnel, from June 1948 until March 1952, when he was named to his present post as Commander, 17th Coast Guard District.

Capt. Frank A. Leamy, USCG, Commander, 8th Coast Guard District, also has been named for flag rank and upon confirmation will assume a date of rank of 1 November, when a second vacancy is expected to occur.

Both officers are 1924 graduates of the U. S. Coast Guard Academy and have almost identical promotion records. They were promoted as follows: Lt.(jg), October 1926; Lt., October 1928; LCdr. October 1932; Cdr., July 1942. Captain Kenner was promoted to that rank on 1 June 1943, while Captain Leamy's captaincy was dated 1 December of the same year.

Captain Kenner served as Task Group Commander, Atlantic Fleet, aboard the USS Poole during WWII.

Later he was ordered to the Southwest Pacific as Commander of the Coast Guard-Army Manning Detachment, and Administrative Commander of Coast Guard activities under the Commander, Service Force, 7th Fleet. From August 1945 until May 1946, he performed the same duties for the Philippine Sea Frontier.

For outstanding service during WWII, Captain Kenner was awarded the Legion of Merit with Combat "V," and the Bronze Star.

During WWI, Captain Leamy served as an enlisted man in the U. S. Army Tank Corps. He was Commanding Officer of the Coast Guard-manned attack transport Joseph T. Dickman during WWII, and participated in action against the enemy in the initial assaults and landings in southern France and, later, at Okinawa. For his role in the landings in southern France, he won his second commendation from the Secretary of the Navy.

Exam Results

Results of the second set of Coast Guard Officer Promotion Examinations reveal 61 failures, or 3.71 per cent, out of the 1,647 who took the required tests on 11 May.

Capt. Kenner

Capt. Leamy

Seven per cent failed the first group of examinations, which were given in January.

In all, there are 28 examinations scheduled at four-month intervals.

Officers who did not score a passing grade will continue with the schedule of examinations established by Headquarters. When officers in this category come up for promotion they will be given advance notice to prepare themselves to retake the examination in which they have failed to qualify. A second failure in the same subject puts an officer permanently out of line for promotion.

Announce Retirements

The Coast Guard has announced that the following commanders have retired because of age: Charles V. Carson, Lewis G. Audemorte and Carl A. Sjolund.

The following officers have retired after 30 years' service: Cdr. Mayer Robbins; LCdrs. John Dalin, *William E. Ireland and *Lonnie D. Young; and Lts. Earl G. Hamilton, *Fred G. Markle, *Alvin E. Newcomb and *Lewis A. Johnson.

The following officers have been retired for physical disability: Cdr. Earl S. Burns; LCdrs. Robert V. Hulee, Edwin B. Wellington and *Fred Edgcomb; Lts. Leslie O. Pressey, Jack B. Strong, and *Thomas L. Keene; and Lt.(jg) Richard J. Mayer.

* If certified in commissioned grade.

Senate Passes Increased Re-Up Bonus Bill; House Group Also Adds Stamp Of Approval

Congressional action on the reenlistment bonus bill this week virtually assured its enactment before adjournment.

The measure, which boosts total bonus payments to $2,000, was passed by the Senate without dissent after Senator Robert C. Hendrickson (R-NJ) detailed how "seriously" the loss of trained men is affecting "the day-to-day competence of our forces."

The House Armed Services Committee scheduled immediate hearings on the Senate-approved measure and favorably reported the bill to the House without amendment.

As previously reported in THE JOURNAL, the bill (S 3539) will increase the average re-up payment (for first reenlistment) from $258 to $537, and will make it possible for some personnel to draw bonuses of more than $1,000.

Personnel in all pay grades would receive increased bonus payments under the new plan. Instead of the present flat scale, the bonus would be computed on the member's base pay (or a portion thereof), times the number of years for which the individual is reenlisting.

Thus, a sergeant and a corporal entering on first reenlistments of six years would receive approximately $912 and $774, respectively. If both were to enter on four-year first-reenlistments, the sergeant would receive a bonus of about $608 and the corporal would receive about $516.

SecDef Orders Officers Assignment Inquiry

He said that frequent assignment changes are "adding unjustifiably" to the expense of the Defense Department.

Mr. Wilson contended also that the morale problem is complicated by relatively short tours of duty.

His directive to the Service Secretaries suggests that in many cases frequent changes are supported as "arbitrary requirements for promotion."

Mr. Wilson gave the Services and Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah no specific target date for completion of the inquiry. However, on the basis of his testimony before Congressional committees during recent months that steps would be taken to cut down the number of transfers of military personnel, it can be expected the study will be completed rapidly.

It is recalled that former Deputy Defense Secretary Roger M. Kyes said on numerous occasions that many military officers, particularly those in logistics and research and development assignments, should serve longer tours than at present.

Mr. Wilson's new demand for a report on this problem is expected to stimulate some controversy.

There are those in responsible positions at the Pentagon who argue that frequent reassignment of officers is essential to provide necessary training for increasingly responsible positions and to assure a broad background in varied defense problems.

On the other hand, Mr. Wilson and other Defense leaders feel that this can be carried too far.

There is implicit in his directive to the Service Secretaries a desire to cut down on the number of officers sent to various types of schools. This will not be received enthusiastically by many officers.

Concern is certain to be expressed also that although increased stabilization is to be desired from a standpoint of economy and family welfare, over-specialization could impair combat readiness and also stagnate promotion opportunities for officers caught in unfavorable assignments.

It can be taken for granted, however, that action will be forthcoming—and in the near future—to increase assignment stability.

The need for this achievement has almost 100 per cent agreement.

The problems arise over: (1) how to do it; and (2) the degree of stabilization.

Mr. Wilson will not be one to permit the conflicting viewpoints to go unresolved. He has told the Service Secretaries to take whatever action they deem appropriate to provide more stabilization; where aid is needed on a higher level, Mr. Wilson has told them to make specific recommendations to him.

Last-Minute Pay Bill Reaches Hill, Mr. Hook Submits "Confidential Study"

Eleventh-hour legislation aimed at boosting military pay for active and retired personnel by 10 per cent was introduced in Congress this week with bi-partisan backing of Representative James E. Van Zandt (R-Pa.) of the Armed Services Committee and Senators Harley Kilgore (D-WVa.) and Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), members of the Appropriations and Armed Services Committees, respectively.

Meantime, it became known that Mr. Charles R. Hook, who was chairman of the commission which studied military pay scales prior to introduction of the Career Compensation Act in 1949, has made a new study on military pay.

Press reports said that Mr. Hook's report to the Defense Department alleged that officers in high ranks were receiving higher pay than in comparative civilian employment.

On Thursday, 8 July a statement was issued—text herewith—which said that these reports were erroneous.

It was stated that Mr. Hook, asked by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson to bring the Hook Commission inquiry up to date, submitted a "confidential study" to the Pentagon.

This hastily contrived report, written by someone other than Mr. Hook himself, assessed arbitrary values on fringe benefits and concluded generally that enlisted men and officers in lower ranks are receiving adequate compensation in relationship to that prevailing in industry,

House Adds Gens. Wedemeyer and DeWitt To 4-Star Bill; Measure Goes To White House

Lieutenant Generals Albert C. Wedemeyer and John L. DeWitt were approved this week for four-star rank on the retired list.

The names of the two officers were added by the House to the "four-star rank bill" which also calls for the promotion of nine other retired officers (three of whom are deceased).

The others on the list are Lieutenant Generals Lesley J. McNair, Simon B. Buckner, jr., Alexander M. Patch, jr., Ben Lear, William H. Simpson, Lucian Truscott, jr., Robert L. Eichelberger, Leonard T. Gerow, and Robert C. Richardson.

As originally drafted, the measure called for promotion to full general of only those officers who commanded an Army or Army Ground Forces during WWII. Prior to Senate passage of the bill last May, the Senate Armed Services Committee added the name of General Richardson who commanded Hawaii and the Pacific area during the second World War.

The House, during consideration of the bill this week, added the names of General DeWitt, WWII commander of the Western Defense Command, and General Wedemeyer, who commanded U. S. forces in China and served as Chief of Staff to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Generals DeWitt and Wedemeyer were added to the list by amendments offered by Rep. Leroy Johnson (R-Calif.) and Rep. Walter H. Judd (R-Minn.), respectively.

Both amendments were adopted, the measure was passed by the House and returned to the Senate where it was cleared for the White House.

MR. HOOK'S STATEMENT

Following is the text of the statement issued by Mr. Hook's office, dated 8 July:

"Commenting on recent articles appearing in the press, Mr. Charles R. Hook, Chairman of the Advisory Commission on Service Pay, who recently, at the request of the Secretary of Defense, wrote a review on the present pay structure, made the following statement:

"The substance of these articles is basically in error in that the review was not intended as a basis for changes in present pay scales, but was solely 'an attempt to analyze the current compensation of the uniformed forces in light of recent advances in our economy.'"

"Mr. Hook stated that he wanted to say very positively that statements in the press that general officers 'live on a scale far more luxurious than like civilians can afford' were not only incorrect but unfair to both these officers and to the members of the Commission who worked on the review."

"Mr. Hook emphasized that there was nothing in the original report nor in the review that would indicate that those of flag rank and holding responsible positions received more favorable treatment compared with their counterparts in civilian life. In fact, one of the most difficult problems faced in arriving at a satisfactory pay scale for military personnel was the practical ceiling of Governmental salaries which prevents our military leaders from receiving compensation comparable to those in civilian life who hold positions of equal responsibility. It was and is difficult to provide monetary incentives sufficient to retain capable senior officers."

"Mr. Hook further explained that, unlike the Commission report in 1949, which led to enactment of the Career Compensation Act, this recent review was a confidential study made for the Secretary of Defense. He did not expect that it would be published, since it was submitted as a personal communication in the hope that it would assist the Secretary in carrying out an evaluation of compensation received by the military."

"In this connection, he suggested the need for educating both the military and the public as to all elements making up military compensation."

Congressmen Ask 10 Per Cent Boost In Military Pay, Subsistence and Quarters

A 10 per cent across-the-board pay raise for military personnel has been proposed by members of the House and Senate Armed Services Committees and the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Basic pay, basic subsistence allowances and basic quarters allowances all would be increased 10 per cent by the measure. Retired personnel also would receive a 10 per cent increase in retired, retirement, retainer pay or the equivalent, regardless of how such pay is computed.

Congressman Van Zandt told THE JOURNAL the Armed Services Committee has asked the Defense Department and the Bureau of the Budget for their views on the new pay measure. He said he is "hopeful" the two agencies will take quick action so the plan can be considered before Congress adjourns.

Representative Van Zandt said he understands the bill "has some support in the Defense Department," and he believes it has a "better chance" of passage than his earlier proposal to tie military pay to the cost-of-living index.

The latter bill was sent to the Pentagon more than 18 months ago for a report which is still pending.

The new pay raise proposal has the strong backing of the Reserve Officers' Association. It was originally planned as an amendment to another bill before Congress to raise the pay of Government Postal employees, but this move has now been abandoned.

As written, the bill would boost the basic monthly pay of a recruit from $78 to $85.80; a master sergeant or CPO with dependents and eight or more years' service would receive $337.06 instead of $306.42; two-, three- and four-star officers with dependents would get an increase from $1,211.82 to $1,333, counting subsistence and quarters.

The book provides an account of marine engineering developments from the turn of the century through WWII.

Before his retirement, Admiral Bowen served as Chief, Bureau of Engineering, forerunner of the Bureau of Ships. He was the first EDO officer in the Navy, the first director of the Office of Patents and Inventions which later became the Office of Research, and the first Chief of Naval Research.

At present, he is executive secretary of the Thomas A. Edison Foundation, Inc.

Col. John McGee To Hawaii
